

Anchor and Ark Club

Following the regular Tuesday night supper the 16th, the Club members were very fortunate in having Capt. Donald B. MacMillan tell of his experiences on his most recent trip to the Arctic, and the use of airplanes in making observations. Capt. MacMillan also explained to the members the value of airplanes and dirigibles in future exploration work. A little remembrance was tendered Capt. MacMillan at the conclusion of his talk, in the form of a miniature iceberg, conceived by Brother Jonathan Small and beautifully executed in marble by Bro Theodore S. Nickerson. After the presentation singing was enjoyed by all present under the able direction of Bro. Hayes Small assisted by Bro. H. LeBaron Stalker at the piano. The supper committee also deserve honorable mention for the fine supper they prepared and served.
