Wilson Line
Executive Dies

Feb. 5
1960

Lawrence N. Campbell, president of the Wilson Excursion Lines, Inc., owners of the Boston Belle, died on February 5 in the Delaware Hospital in Wilmington, Del. He was 70 years old.

Mr. Campbell joined the Wilson company in 1929 and became a designer, builder and operator of a fleet of modern excursion vessels that had been ranked at one time among the largest in the world. The Wilson Lines, established seventy years ago, were bought in 1953 for $1,000,000 by the City Investing Company of New York.

Mr. Campbell was kept as general manager and made president of a subsidiary, Wilson Excursion Lines, Inc. In 1955 the corporation had nine boats operating out of Wilmington, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, New York and Boston. It now runs four, two operating out of New York, and two out of Boston, including the Boston Belle, which runs between Boston and Provincetown.
